

Enterhealth: Withdrawal Stabilization (Detoxification)

Trying to quit certain addictive substances can be dangerous, which is why Enterhealth offers Withdrawal Stabilization (Detox) that provides clients a safe way to recovery and sobriety.

Alcohol and drug withdrawals are the physical symptoms experienced when a person stops using a substance the body has become dependent upon. During this process, the body is ridding itself of the substance and is trying to rebalance itself. Because the body has become so dependent upon these substances, stopping abruptly can actually become life threatening. It is for this reason that many people cannot "just say no."

Enterhealth's revolutionary program offers customized residential treatment withdrawal stabilization using the latest technology, the most effective anti-addiction medicines, and a 24-hour on-site medical staff. Withdrawal stabilization or detox is provided in a safe, private, anonymous manner, utilizing medication therapies for depressants, opiates, alcohol and other drug compounds. Examples of these include, but are not limited to:

- Beer, wine, liquor
- Valium, Xanax, GHB
- Heroin, Oxycotin, Codeine
- Multiple substances (i.e. alcohol and opiates)

Because detox is not complete addiction treatment, after this process, clients are expected to participate in a customized program of drug and alcohol addiction recovery therapies designed to address each client's specific dependency challenges. Our advanced addiction treatment program means that we can ease a client's withdrawal, reduce cravings and engage in relapse prevention and intervention tools to help a client achieve complete recovery and sobriety – all in one private, serene and secure setting.
