Expertise in Addiction and the Law

Most drug or alcohol addiction programs simply don't work, as they are rooted in a 12-step program that has not changed since its inception almost 80 years ago. That is the primary reason your clients with substance abuse issues tend to return to the courtroom again and again, finding themselves stuck in the legal system.

The programs at Enterhealth, on the other hand, are based on the latest National Institutes of Health (NIH) research establishing addiction as a treatable chronic brain disease, and have proven to be more effective than traditional programs. This gives your clients a better chance of a lifelong recovery, and makes Enterhealth an invaluable partner for attorneys, judges and other legal professionals, providing insight and expertise on the complexities of addiction.

Helping Attorneys and Clients Alike

For attorneys, we provide education as to how substance abuse can affect behavior and decision making, as well as the consequences of not getting properly diagnosed or treated. Where treatment or an expert opinion is critical to an offender's case, Enterhealth can serve as a trusted advisor and/or treatment provider. With a full-time staff of addiction treatment experts, including board-certified physicians and addiction psychiatrists, we can provide testimony on addiction, underlying causes, resultant behaviors and other related areas, as needed.

For your clients, we provide proven medically based treatment, including thorough medical and psychological assessments, personalized treatment plans and treatment of any co-occurring psychological issues. Also, Enterhealth Ranch, located just north of Dallas, provides residential treatment in a luxurious, 43-acre setting complete with private rooms, chef-prepared meals and maid service.
